

Domestic Violence

Domestic violence is one of the most unfortunate and difficult areas of practice of family law. Whether or not it's a spouse, a significant other, or a minor child that's threatened, it is important that our client understand that we can work with them to develop a safety plan to ensure that they are protected during the pendency of their case. Domestic violence injunctions are available for people who are either already the victim of domestic violence or have a reasonable fear that they will become the victim of domestic violence. If you find yourself in this situation, it's important that you act and not sit silently and suffer. Call us at the Law Firm for Family Law, let us analyze the facts of your situation and if it's possible for us to obtain a domestic violence injunction, we can move forward in that way and consult with you about how to maintain your safety and the safety of your children during this period of time.
